

SOVIET FLATLY REJECTS U. S. PROTEST

DENIES POWER TO HALT 'RED' ACTIVITY HERE

Three Other Nations Add to Note Sent to Moscow By Washington

SUPPORT IS GROWING

Trojanovsky Says U. S., Too, Using Propaganda

BULLETIN

MOSCOW, Aug. 27.—The Soviet government tonight flatly rejected the protest from the United States over subversive activities of the Communist International which threatened "serious consequences" if they continued.

An official announcement from the Kremlin declared the Soviet government "cannot assume and has never assumed any obligations regarding the Communist International."

Reject Other Protests

The announcement followed by two hours rejection of verbal tests made by Great Britain and Latvia.

WASHINGTON sentiment spread land for several American relations with Russia. The Soviet ambassador here hinted today at what his government might say in reply to the state department's warning that it must cease distributing communistic propaganda in the United States.

Ambassador Alexander Trojanovsky added this pertinent paragraph to a statement announcing "a satisfactory reply will be made in Moscow by the government": "Anything said in Moscow by American citizens about the United States is very insignificant compared to continuous propaganda in the United States against the Soviet Union."

He tried to minimize the widespread opposition and unrest that has been caused by the dissemination of Communistic literature in the United States, particularly during labor troubles, by seeking to place the shoe on the other foot and saying:

"I have even seen suggestions that our government should somehow stop the (Anti-Russian) activity of American organizations and American citizens in the United States."

Meanwhile the white house and the state department were receiving endorsements of various organizations upholding the American note warning Russia.

PETITIONERS FAIL TO PRESENT NAMES

The petition to separate Circleville from the township outside the corporation from the city failed to reach the county commissioners Monday.

Rumors circulated at the meeting of township trustees in the courthouse were to the effect the petition had been signed by a large number of persons but many of the signers were not landholders.

The majority of the landholders in the territory outside the city must sign the petition before it can come before the county commissioners.

Hollywoods Scions Inherit Parents' Good Looks

Expansion of Church Laid To Ferguson

Pastor, Returning Twentieth Year, Started With 15 In Congregation.

By vote of the congregation Rev. O. L. Ferguson will continue as pastor of the local Church of Christ in Christian Union for his 26th year, according to an announcement Tuesday morning from the Mount of Praise.

Rev. Arthur George of Circleville will continue as pastor of the churches of New Holland and Waterloo, the only other two Churches of Christ in Christian Union in the county. The Rev. George held the same positions last year.

Started Its Growth

Twenty-five years ago the Rev. Ferguson organized a class of 15 persons in the south end of Circleville and the class grew into what is now the Church of Christ in Christian Union on E. Ohio-st. The church building is valued at $4,500 and 165 members now belong to the institution.

Through the effort of the Rev. Ferguson, Circleville was made the camp meeting place of all Ohio churches and the meeting place of the council of churches. The Mount of Praise represents an investment of about $75,000 and brings thousands to Circleville every year for the camp meeting sessions.

1,800 Present Monday

Although Monday is generally considered a low attendance day about 1,800 persons attended the camp meeting sessions. Rev. T. M. Anderson of Wilmore, Ky., will preach at 11 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. daily throughout the week. The Rev. E. H. Stillion of East Palestine will preach at 8 p. m. daily.

SESSION ENDS; ISSUES FACED

Passage of Bonus In Next Meeting Seen Certain; Many Problems Remain

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The 74th Congress, off for a four-months' vacation today, faces momentous issues in the next session which occurs January 3, 1936.

Inflation, the NRA and the soldiers' bonus loomed as among the gravest problems which must be solved by the Congress in the shadow of the impending 1936 election.

While administration leaders pointed their efforts toward a short session this winter, their hope was lessened by developments of the last two weeks.

Bonus Seen Certain

The Senate has agreed to consider the $2,000,000,000 Patman soldiers' bonus bill early in January. Passage of the bonus in some form seemed assured, since President Roosevelt's veto was sustained by only a slight margin in the first session.

The administration, many congressional leaders believe, will try to effect a bonus compromise and

Petitions Circulated for May and Barnhart; Four Now Seek Three Positions.

Petitions to be filed in the interests of Charles H. May and Clarence R. Barnhart asking that they be re-elected to the board of education were being circulated in the city Monday afternoon and Tuesday.

They will be filed within the next few days with the board of elections.

Announcement of the petitions being in circulation settled any question there might have been concerning the candidacies of the two capable members of the board.

Mr. May is president of the board and Mr. Barnhart is vice president. Both have been on the board for quite a while and have often proved their ability as overseers of the city school system.

Their petitions mean that a contest is certain for the three jobs to be vacant. The term of Robert G. Colville, clerk, expires in addition to those of Mr. May and Mr. Barnhart. Mr. Colville will not seek re-election.

Two other men, Rev. L. C. Sherrburne and Dr. G. D. Phillips, have announced their candidacies. It is possible there may be one or two more in the race before the deadline for filing petitions is reached.

Joe Mackey, who comes here Sept. 8 to feature the annual air day, is quite a flyer.

Sunday at Dayton he was acting in a contest for stunts when, coming out of an outside loop, something came loose on his plane, struck him in the head and rendered him unconscious.

Mackey's doom seemed near as the plane catapulted toward the ground. He regained consciousness in time to land then lapsed again into the "unknown." He was "out" when field attendants reached his plane.

The judges unanimously voted him best of all.

Mackey as a stuntman is one of the best and his show in the annual air day is expected to be outstanding.

COUNTY URGED TO PLAN JOBS FOR RELIEFERS

WPA Officials Tell Township, County Officials Projects Are Needed

COUNTY FAR SHORT

Asked to List Projects With Sweetman

Pickaway-co is in need of worthwhile WPA projects to furnish employment to "pick and shovel" labor, township and county officials were informed Monday evening at a meeting in the courthouse with L. L. Henninger, district director, and John W. Graham, district engineer of the WPA, office in Chillicothe. They explained less than 100 men would be employed under projects now listed under WPA in this county.

Officials were urged to list within the next two days all projects they desire to have considered under WPA with the local relief office or County Engineer J. H. Sweetman.

Purposes Outlined

"The sole purpose of the WPA is to put to work persons now on the direct relief rolls on worthwhile work projects," Mr. Henninger told the officials. "The government plans to be out of the direct relief business by November and all able bodied persons now on the relief rolls must be provided employment. Projects must be developed in this county as less than 100 would be employed on projects listed up to the present time."

Mr. Graham furnished the officials with an outline of the type of work desired for projects. "Many sound experiences resulted in the CWA because of insufficient planning," Mr. Graham said. "Under the WPA all labor will be certified from the national reemployment office and if subdivision officials desire to hire a foreman for the work they may do so at their own expense. Labor will be figured at $44 a month."

Provide Materials

"We appreciate as much contribution as possible toward these projects and in most instances the township governments must spend 50 percent toward the material costs. Under the projects the cost

COUNTY CANINES TO GET NEW HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Stray Dog and their 38 house guests of Near-Bridge Manor on the Scioto river banks, will move to their new residence, Circleville Nuisance Addition, on the Island road, the latter part of this week.

The county commissioners were notified Monday afternoon the city had granted them the use of a small tract of ground near the Island road river bridge for a county dog kennel. Commissioners so far have not decided what improvements will be made in the dog pound as the kennel fund has reached a low mark. If animal claims continue to cut into the kennel fund it may be exhausted before the end of the year.

Numerous complaints about the present location of the pound caused the commissioners to seek a new location. Since the commissioners recently declared war on stray dogs and threatened prosecution owners of dogs without licenses, the pound has had a daily average of about 40 dogs. More than 600 stray dogs have been killed this year.

Questions and Answers
Will you please tell me what saleratus is? I have an old recipe book which uses the term and does not describe the nature of the product.

Saleratus is a name which was used for baking soda years ago. Use your favorite brand of baking soda wherever the old recipes call for saleratus.

What are griddle almonds? Are they sweet meat or just salted nuts?

Grilled almonds, according to an old recipe, are crisp, sweetened nuts. Prepare them like this: Blanch and dry thoroughly 1 cup of almonds. Boil 1 cup of sugar with 4 tablespoons of water until the syrup spins a thread. Then put the almonds in the syrup and cook them in the syrup, stirring them until the nuts turn a light brown. Remove from the stove as soon as the sugar changes color, and stir until the syrup has turned back to sugar and clings to the nuts in various shapes. Served with salted almonds, the grilled almonds are quite a delicacy.

Will you tell me whether you approve of or disagree with the school of thought opposed to eating starches and proteins at the same meal?

A noted doctor gives this opinion: "There is no scientific foundation for the view that we cannot satisfactorily handle starches and proteins in the digestive tract. It is true that the conditions in the stomach which favor protein digestion are unfavorable to starch digestion, but we do not rely entirely on the stomach for food digestion. In the small intestine where most of the digestion takes place, both starches and proteins are satisfactorily handled at the same time."

CLEAN HEAT For Your Home

Your curtains that remain fresh so long in summer—do they quickly become dull in winter? Why this difference? Furnace dirt is the answer—smoke, soot, dust and ashes settling on curtains, rugs and upholstery. Gas heat is clean, and by its use, as much as 80 per cent of your cleaning bill on furnishings can be eliminated.

Investigate GAS Heat For Your Home Now

Before having any need for your furnace, before you buy any fuel, investigate automatic gas heat. It is clean, needs no attention, and maintains constant temperatures. All incidental expenses considered, it costs less than old-fashioned solid fuels. Ask us about installing gas-fired equipment in your furnace at once, and paying for it in small installments like rent.

The JANITROL gas burner operates automatically. You don't even need a match to start it in the fall, and you can forget it until time to turn it off in the spring. There is a correct size and type to fit your furnace or boiler. It can be easily and quickly installed.

THINK BEFORE SIGNING

THE customary injunction to all persons in all circumstances is to "read a paper before you sign it." In the case of petitions now going the rounds preliminary to the elections, this advice should be amplified. Not only should you read a petition before signing it, but you should think about the matter also. This is particularly true of proposals for amendment to the state constitution. Many unintelligent proposals to change the basic law will get on the ballot this fall, probably, just because a great number of good-natured, obliging persons have signed petitions they did not read and would not have approved if they had troubled to read them.

One such proposal is to amend the constitution of Ohio to prohibit any tax levied on real property. The folly of this plan was remarked in these columns Sunday. Another wild-eyed scheme is to prohibit sales taxes—in other words to repeal the existing sales tax and make any other impossible. Still another proposal is to exempt food and clothing from the sales tax, which is tantamount to abandoning the tax.

In general, it is a sound rule to oppose any constitutional amendment which hampers the Legislature in the performance of its rightful duties. To deny the General Assembly the right to levy taxes on sales of food and clothing is to destroy their work of last year and force them to new expedients to pay for the things the people demand should be done. To force abandonment of the taxes on real estate is to pile up new and burdensome taxes on everyone, and in effect to give windfall benefits to owners of real property who bought at prices which were lower because of customary taxes.

One of the reasons why government is not on a higher plane in Ohio is precisely the tendency of the people to hamper the Legislature by unwise constitutional amendments. The worst possible way to destroy the work of the Legislature is to deprive it of the most convenient and productive sources of revenue. To do so compels the legislators to rush through hasty, badly designed revenue measures, taxing blindly to get the money for essential functions of government. It is best to give every political petition very careful study before signing it or circulating it for another person. If this were done extensively, the ballot would not be cluttered with inane and insane projects that have no claim to serious public consideration.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

TODAY the Sunday school contends with competition undreamed of in olden times. Indifference to church and religion, the so-called waning power of parental authority, the automobile and Sunday trip, popularization of the vacation, the hot weather exodus from city and town, and the gradual breakdown of old traditions of Sunday observance.

Inroads upon attendance from these causes are most marked during the period of hot weather, the best evidence of which is the high tide of attendance which annually begins to flow about this time of year, not to recede again until the return of summer. Roll calls in the Sunday schools on these October Sundays show that the period of de-cursive attendance is at an end. Teachers and students are pouring back into the Sunday school classes eager for the opportunity to teach and learn.

These seasonal fluctuations in attendance and interest cause ministerial and lay workers to inquire whether the fault all lies with factors outside the Sunday schools. Some are asking if the schools are doing all within their power to counteract these destructive elements.

Is the Sunday school keeping pace with human progress? Is it working with modern equipment? Has it developed as rapidly and intelligently as the public schools? These are some of the questions being answered, and which must be answered before summer attendance again approximates that of the period from late fall to early spring.

These men and women upon whom rests the responsibility of imparting to Americans both young and old a knowledge of religious teachings and literature will solve this modern problem, though the task before them may not be less formidable than that approached by those who laid the foundation stones for this vast system of Sunday schools.

Suckers can't appreciate help. If they didn't hate and jeer the meddler who tries to save them, they wouldn't be suckers.

Vaccination for Smallpox Should Be Done First Year

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THIS SUMMER while in England,
I took a somewhat out-of-the-way journey to Berkeley in Gloucestershire, it lies between Bristol and Gloucester, both of them interesting cities, but both somewhat off the beaten track of tourists.

Berkeley is still more off the beaten track, a sleepy little village in the midst of the beautiful farming and dairy country of western England.

It was in Berkeley that Edward Jenner did the first vaccination against smallpox. The little tatched summer house, the scene of the event, is still standing in a corner of the vicarage garden. Jenner's brother was the vicar of St. Mary's church, and the old churchyard and church itself are next door to the little tatched house.

Strangely enough, no plaque or sign marks the spot to explain to the casual visitor what occurred here.
There is no statue or monument to Jenner in the main street of the little town. Only an occasional interested medical man like myself takes the trouble to scramble through the bushes and over the fence of the churchyard to catch a glimpse of that historic structure. In the church Jenner's grave is found with difficulty. A stone in the wall bears only his name and his dates:

"Edward Jenner, 1749-1823"

I like that. No one should have to be told what that name is associated with—one of the very greatest triumphs of mankind—more important than all the victories of all the wars.

Figures Don't Tell All
What he saved the world from cannot be appreciated from the recital of mere figures.

"If in any one year," wrote Sir James Simpson, "some overwhelming catastrophe destroyed all the living population of the counties of Nairn or Kinross; or swept away every living inhabitant of the cathedral cities of Litchfield, Ripon or Wells; or slaughtered four or five regiments of soldiers—such an event would assuedly terrify the public and its guardians; the strongest measures would,
no doubt, be called for with a view of preventing the recurrence of the catastrophe. But a similar amount of slaughter is constantly caused by smallpox—not once, but continuously;
by not one year, but every year."

Sir James was writing in 1864 and arguing for quarantine. Vaccination had been introduced but was performed only at the discretion of the individual.

When universal vaccination became compulsory, the conditions he described disappeared.

Before Jenner's day, the carelessness with which the public allowed themselves to be exposed is unbelievable.

"Beggars in the streets importun-ing for charity—and lifting up their children with smallpox encrustations still upon them, almost against the very faces of those from whom they asked alms, and infecting them with the malady."

But even that would not be a danger to a person who has been vaccinated. Quarantine proved ineffective. Only vaccination stopped the spread of the disease.

When should vaccination against smallpox be done? All we need to do to answer the question is to look at the case incidence—in the Monteal epidemic of 1885, 2,717 children under 10 years of age died, and 447 adults.

Vaccinate your child certainly before one year. Later it has been advocated to vaccinate them on the first day of life. Absolutely before entering school.

THE DEVIL'S MANSION

CHAPTER 31

COULD IT be that the face Janet had seen at the Tower window was that of this mysterious person whom Rajah obeyed? Certainly, the dog did not take orders from Nita or Miss Boisevain. He ignored them.
Someone else in the house.
"You had better go to bed, child,"
Miss Boisevain said softly.
"Can't I sit up all night with you?
You may need me."

"Nita will stay. Goodnight,"
Janet looked indecisively at Nita.
The servant nodded her head, avering with her mistress, and the girl made ready to leave the room.
Nita preceded her as usual with a candle, escorting her up the stairs.
At the top she handed her the light,
and vanished down the dark hall way.

Janet entered her bare room, locked the door carefully and sat on the edge of her cot.

Someone else in the house... she couldn't rid the thought from her mind.

Suddenly arising, she walked to the door and tried it. It was firmly locked, and the key turned. No one could possibly get through that door tonight. Yet last night and the night before, her room had been entered. True, it had been simple the first night because she had no key.
But last night, she had locked the door securely. And in the morning she had found the window open!

Was there another entrance to the room? With her candle in her hand, she explored the clothes closet which opened off the room on the north wall. No door here from the outside.
She held the light high again to make sure. No, no door here... but on the paneled wall she suddenly saw finger marks. She went carefully over the wall of the closet, but found the finger prints only at one spot
... near the moulding of the panel.
The rest of the paper was faded, but clean. The marks were about the height of her shoulders, and plainly visible in the candlelight.

Quickly re-entering the bedroom, she looked over the walls there. Not a sign of a finger mark. Another trip to the closet, and she placed her own fingers on the marks and pressed against the moulding. The small panel slid back, and she was looking into the darkness!

Trembling a little, she slipped off her shoes and went forward slowly.
She was in another bare room. A room she had investigated from the hall. The room adjoining hers!

On the walls of the room, at exactly the height of the finger marks in her closet, she found other marks.
"Do not take a light..." she remembered Miss Boisevain's warning.

And she hastily returned to her room again and put the candle down in the middle of the floor. Then she slipped through the door of the empty room into the hall.

No sound of Rajah... not a sound of the rustling of the house...
Janet cautiously, holding on to the railing for support, she could see nothing at all. There was a little draft on the floor of the third floor hall when she reached it, and her ankles began to get a little cold.

At the top of the landing, she strained her eyes to look about, but could see nothing. As her eyes became accustomed to the darkness, she groped her way to a door, and felt for a handle. There it was!
The east tower was where she had seen that face... this door would not lead to it—she would have to go further.

For a moment she sat down on the floor to rest, listening for the warning Rajah would give as he bounded up the stairs.

She heard nothing... she was safe for a little while.
Noiselessly she crept to the east side of the house and felt for a door.
It was there... the end room, which must face the front. The tower was directly above it. She stopped to quiet her racing nerves. Perhaps there would be a staircase in this room... if she could but find the window and open it... she could see by the starlight, or the moon might have risen a little.

She found the window and pulled up the blind, but the shutters were too much for her and she gave them up in despair.
Ah... here was the door. Her hand had touched a cold, smooth knob. She turned it slowly but the door did not open. It must be locked! All the other doors she had tried were open... all she had to do was turn the handles.

Again she tried, but with no success. The door was fastened tightly.
Was that a sob she heard? She listened again. A slight noise from above again came to her ears. Yes, it was a sob, scarcely audible. She would never have heard it had not her senses been so keyed up by fright. She might have thought it was the wind...
There was someone in the tower!
Someone—yes, Blair Rodman's car had been driven away!

Janet leaned against the door to puzzle out the problem. She had imagined that the person in the tower room had driven away the car
... yet she had distinctly heard someone there just now...
She scratched her nails against the wood of the door panel softly. A knock might be heard. Miss Boise-vain had been ears...

Again, but she received no answer.

Without hesitation, Janet hastily slid from the room, stumbled down the hall, found the stairs and in a moment was on the second floor, panting breathlessly. She slid through the panel to her room, and stood blinking at the feeble glow of the candle in the middle of the floor.
The engine noise had stopped now.

Still blinded by the light, she sat,
exhausted, on the cot.

Four people... five, perhaps six in this house!
Herself, Miss Boisevain, Nita, the one in the tower, the driver of the car and Blair Rodman. Six!

Two of them she had never seen.
Drooping her cot over in front of the closet door, she sat, hunched dependently on the edge. The closet door opened into the room, so if anyone tried to enter the room this night, she would have to be awakened first!

Why had she run away from the tower door?
Fear, she decided, of being caught
... not by Nita or Miss Boisevain, but by this mysterious person...
this person she had never seen... the one Rajah obeyed. Hardly had she thought of the dog than she heard him leaping, heavy and lithe,
up the stairs.

Then silence. He probably had lain down at her door to watch her for the night!

Useless to try to get out of the room again, with Rajah there... she would have to wait for morning before she searched for Blair Rodman.

Wearily, she undressed and soon was under the coarse blanket. But she could not sleep. The mad playing had started again on the living room piano...
It could not be Miss Boisevain...
she had been weak and ill when Janet left her... it was someone else.

The girl thought the music even more terrible tonight than it had been the previous evening. She could not lie still, so she got up and walked the bare floor, her hands over her ears to shut out the maniacal tune...
If the music had affected Miss Boisevain so cruelly the night before,
what would it do to her tonight,
when she was so sick, so feeble?
(TO BE CONTINUED)

Poems That Live

ALADDIN

When I was a beggarly boy,
And lived in a cellar damp,
I had not a friend nor a toy,
But I had Aladdin's lamp;

When I could not sleep for the cold,
I had fire enough in my brain,
And builded, with roofs of gold,
My beautiful castles in Spain!

Since then I have toiled day and night,
I have money and power good store,
But I'd give all my lamps of silver bright

For that one that is mine no more.
Take, Fort une, whatever you choose;

You gave, and may snatch
again;
I have nothing 'twould pain me to lose.

For I own no more castles in Spain!

Ronald Colman returned from a year's vacation to bring an old friend back to the screen of the Cliftona Theatre, where "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back" begins a two day showing Wednesday.

Ever since Colman made the earlier talkie, "Bulldog Drum-retained a fond memory of the dashing Captain Hugh Drummond whom he first portrayed in that picture.

which will be the feature attrac-

"Big Time Or Bust," a drama with music, is a story of the show business, depicting its varied phases in carnivals, vaudeville, night clubs, and the Broadway theatre.

SOVIET FLATLY REJECTS U. S. PROTEST

DENIES POWER TO HALT 'RED' ACTIVITY HERE

Three Other Nations Add to Note Sent to Moscow By Washington

SUPPORT IS GROWING

Trojanovsky Says U. S., Too, Using Propaganda

BULLETIN

MOSCOW, Aug. 27.—The Soviet government tonight flatly rejected the protest from the United States over subversive activities of the Communist International which threatened "serious consequences" if they continued.

An official announcement from the Kremlin declared the Soviet government "cannot assume and has never assumed any obligations regarding the Communist International."

Reject Other Protests

The announcement followed by two hours rejection of verbal tests made by Great Britain and Latvia.

WASHINGTON sentiment spread here for several days. American relations with Russia, the Soviet ambassador here hinted today at what his government might say in reply to the state department's warning that it must cease distributing Communist propaganda in the United States.

Ambassador Alexander Trojanovsky added this pertinent paragraph to a statement announcing "a satisfactory reply will be made in Moscow by the government": "Anything said in Moscow by American citizens about the United States is very insignificant compared to continuous propaganda in the United States against the Soviet Union."

He tried to minimize the widespread opposition and unrest that has been caused by the dissemination of Communist literature in the United States, particularly during labor troubles, by seeking to place the shoe on the other foot and saying: "I have even seen suggestions that our government should somehow stop the (Anti-Russian) activity of American organizations and American citizens in the United States."

Meanwhile the white house and the state department were receiving endorsements of various organizations upholding the American note warning Russia.

PETITIONERS FAIL TO PRESENT NAMES

The petitions to separate Circleville-Twp outside the corporation from the city failed to reach the county commissioners Monday.

Rumors circulated at the meeting of township trustees in the courthouse were to the effect the petitions had been signed by a large number of persons but many of the signers were not landholders.

The majority of the landholders in the territory outside the city must sign the petition before it can come before the county commissioners.

New Arrivals

Announcement was made today of the birth of a daughter in Christ hospital, Cincinnati, Tuesday morning to Mr. and Mrs. William Downs. The mother is the former Allison Delaplaine, sister of Mrs. George H. Fickardt, E. Main-st. She has been named Diana Delaplaine Downs.

CHILD, 3, DRINKS PINT OF WHISKEY, BELIEVED TO DIE

GREENUP, Ky., Aug. 27.—Near death from drinking almost a pint of moonshine whiskey, 3-year-old Floyd Horsley today was given little chance to recover by two physicians who were attempting to revive him. The child found the bottle before his parents awoke and drank the contents. His father, Jack Horsley, found the boy unconscious later.

Hollywoods Scions Inherit Parents' Good Looks

Proof of biologists' contention that beauty is an inherited rather than an acquired characteristic, is offered in Hollywood, where offspring of noted film stars are found to be unusually attractive children. Here are some of screenland's scions pictured at party given by Mrs. Wesley Ruggles, nee Arline Judge. (Left) Richard Arlen, Jr. (left), and Manny Robinson, son of Edward G. Robinson. Below: Jack Woody, son of Helen Twelvetrees, and the three children of Bing Crosby and Dixie Lee: Philip, Gary and Michael.

$800 UNPAID IN PARK FUND

Haswell Property Cannot Be Bought Until All Pledges Are Reported.

Approximately $800 is still due the city park committee on unpaid pledges, Chairman Joseph W. Adkins, Jr., announced Tuesday morning.

He explained the collection of pledges this summer had been extremely difficult due to so many residents leaving the city on vacation.

Purchase of the Haswell property on Watt-st for the park site will be delayed until all the pledges are received. Collections so far total $3,052.

NEW HOLLAND SETS CIRCLEVILLE NIGHT

Local Delegation to Visit Centennial Sept. 11; Charles May To Lead Group.

If plans carry out as intended Circleville will open New Holland's mammoth centennial celebration by sending a large delegation to the west-county village, Sept. 11. The Circleville part of the program will start about 7:30 p. m.

Wednesday night has been set aside as "Circleville night" and efforts will be made to have a great crowd on hand led by the high school band and the American Legion drum corps.

Charles H. May, Circleville attorney and one of New Holland's favorite sons, will head the local delegation.

Thursday night is reserved for Chillicothe and Friday for Washington C. H. with Saturday night belonging to everybody. On Thursday the "Parade of the Century" will be staged in the evening.

Josef Louis and Edie Kirk two popular New Holland youths, were visiting the several cities Tuesday to establish definite plans for the various "nights". They were also going to Adelphi to obtain a marching delegation of Red Men for the big parade.

Some of the features of the centennial celebration will include a midway, a carnival, and a relic and antique display. There will be platform dancing and a floor show each evening with Eddie Kirk and his New Hollanders orchestra providing music.

Expansion of Church Laid To Ferguson

Pastor, Returning Twentysixth Year, Started With 15 In Congregation.

By vote of the congregation Rev. O. L. Ferguson will continue as pastor of the local Church of Christ in Christian Union for his 26th year, according to an announcement Tuesday morning from the Mount of Praise.

Rev. Arthur George of Circleville will continue as pastor of the churches of New Holland and Waterloo, the only other two Churches of Christ in Christian Union in the county. The Rev. George held the same positions last year.

Started Its Growth

Twenty-five years ago the Rev. Ferguson organized a class of 15 persons in the south end of Circleville and the class grew into what is now the Church of Christ in Christian Union on E. Ohio-st. The church building is valued at $4,500 and 165 members now belong to the institution.

Through the effort of the Rev. Ferguson, Circleville was made the camp meeting place of all Ohio churches and the meeting place of the council of churches. The Mount of Praise represents an investment of about $75,000 and brings thousands to Circleville every year for the camp meeting sessions.

1,800 Present Monday

Although Monday is generally considered a low attendance day about 1,800 persons attended the camp meeting sessions. Rev. T. M. Anderson of Wilmore, Ky., will preach at 11 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. daily throughout the week.

Rev. E. H. Stillion of East Palestine will preach at 8 p. m. daily.

One day this week the camp meeting officials plan to celebrate missionary day. They hope to obtain a number of returned missionaries for lectures throughout the day.

LEGION TO NAME ITS NEW LEADERS

DAYTON, Aug. 27. Election of a new department commander and other Ohio department officials today will bring to an end the 17th annual state convention of the American Legion.

Either Sam H. Cobb, Columbus, or Milton D. Campbell, Cincinnati, was expected to be elected commander, succeeding William Kunkel, Warren.

Portsmouth was favored for the 1938 state convention city.

Thousands of Legionnaires here for the convention studied the report of the special committee which investigated conditions at the Ohio soldiers and sailors' orphan's home at Xenia in the light of budget slashes made by Governor Davey.

SESSION ENDS; ISSUES FACED

Passage of Bonus In Next Meeting Seen Certain; Many Problems Remain

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The 74th Congress, off for a four-months' vacation today, faces momentous issues in the next session which opens January 3, 1936.

Inflation, the NRA and the soldiers' bonus loomed as among the gravest problems which must be solved by the Congress in the shadow of the impending 1936 election.

While administration leaders pointed their efforts toward a short session this winter, their hope was lessened by developments of the last two weeks.

Bonus Seen Certain

The Senate has agreed to consider the $2,000,000,000 Patman soldiers' bonus bill early in January. Passage of the bonus in some form seemed assured, since President Roosevelt's veto was sustained by only a slight margin in the first session.

The administration, many congressional leaders believe, will try to effect a bonus compromise and

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS RUN

Petitions Circulated for May and Barnhart; Four Now Seek Three Positions.

Petitions to be filed in the interests of Charles H. May and Clarence R. Barnhart asking that they be re-elected to the board of education were being circulated in the city Monday afternoon and Tuesday.

They will be filed within the next few days with the board of elections.

Announcement of the petitions being in circulation settled any question there might have been concerning the candidacies of the two capable members of the board.

Mr. May is president of the board and Mr. Barnhart is vice president. Both have been on the board for quite a while and have often proved their ability as overseers of the city school system.

Their petitions mean that a contest is certain for the three jobs to be vacant. The term of Robert G. Colville, clerk, expires in addition to those of Mr. May and Mr. Barnhart. Mr. Colville will not seek re-election.

Two other men, Rev. L. C. Sherrburne and Dr. G. D. Phillips, have announced their candidacies. It is possible there may be one or two more in the race before the deadline for filing petitions is reached.

KRINN ANNOUNCES INITIAL SHOW ACT

The first free attraction for the Pumpkin show has been signed up, according to an announcement Tuesday morning by T. D. Krinn, chairman of the show amusement committee.

The act is known as "The Stratosphere Man" and will be presented at Court and High-sts. The act is a high trapeze and swinging pole performance climaxed by a 500 foot slide. Mr. Krinn will obtain three other acts for the show.

As in previous years the free acts will be presented at Main and Pickaway-sts at 1 and 7 p. m. daily; Court and High-sts at 3 and 9 p. m.; W. Main-st at Scioto at 4 and 10 p. m. and in front of the courthouse at 5 and 11 p. m. The parades will be held at 2 and 8 p. m. daily.

Mackey Escapes Death in Dayton's Air Show

Joe Mackey, who comes here Sept. 8 to feature the annual air day, is quite a flyer.

Sunday at Dayton he was acting in a contest for stunts when, coming out of an outside loop, something came loose on his plane, struck him in the head and rendered him unconscious.

Mackey's doom seemed near as the plane catapulted toward the ground. He regained consciousness in time to land then lapsed again into the "unknown". He was "out" when field attendants reached his plane.

The judges unanimously voted him best of all.

Mackey as a stunter is one of the best and is expected to be outstanding.

Sawyer to Receive Parole from Prison

Harry Sawyer, this city, was granted a conditional parole from the Mansfield reformatory Sept. 20 to Pickaway-co authorities by the Ohio parole board Tuesday.

COUNTY URGED TO PLAN JOBS FOR RELIEFERS

WPA Officials Tell Township, County Officials Projects Are Needed

COUNTY FAR SHORT

Asked to List Projects With Sweetman

Pickaway-co is in need of worthwhile WPA projects to furnish employment to "pick and shovel" labor; township and county officials were informed Monday evening at a meeting in the courthouse with L. L. Henninger, district director, and John W. Graham, district engineer of the WPA office in Chillicothe. They explained less than 100 men would be employed under projects now listed under WPA in this county.

Officials were urged to list within the next two days all projects they desire to have considered under WPA with the local relief office or County Engineer J. H. Sweetman.

Purposes Outlined

"The sole purpose of the WPA is to put to work persons now on the direct relief rolls on worthwhile work projects," Mr. Henninger told the officials. "The government plans to be out of the direct relief business by November and all able bodied persons now on the relief rolls must be provided employment. Projects must be developed in this county as less than 100 would be employed on projects listed up to the present time."

Mr. Graham furnished the officials with an outline of the type of work desired for projects. "Many sour experiences resulted in the CWA because of insufficient planning," Mr. Graham said. "Under the WPA all labor will be certified from the national reemployment office and if subdivision officials desire to hire a foreman for the work they may do so at their own expense. Labor will be figured at $44 a month."

Provide Materials

"We appreciate as much contribution as possible toward these projects and in most instances the township governments must spend 50 percent toward the material costs. Under the projects the cost

MAN JAILED AS KIDNAPER

Police of Helena Believe Man They Have is Mahan of Weyerhaeuser Case.

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 27.—A man believed to be William Mahan, long-sought "brains" of the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping case, was under arrest here today.

The suspect, said by Chief of Police Roger Smith to resemble the description of Mahan "in every way" was taken into custody with a companion shortly before midnight and lodged in the Lewis and Clark county jail.

Agents of the bureau of identification and officers from Butte, Mont., who knew Mahan, object of one of the most intensive man-hunts in the nation's history, were to check the suspect this morning in an effort to definitely establish his identity.

AAA AND TVA FACING COURT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27. Two more important pillars of the Roosevelt legislative program—the AAA and the TVA—reached the Supreme court today for a test as to their constitutionality.

The government itself filed an appeal in the Hoosac mills case, involving the cotton processing taxes, which the U. S. circuit court of appeals, in a 2 to 1 decision, held unconstitutional.

Stockholders of the Alabama Power company filed a suit in the highest court to test the constitutionality of the Tennessee valley authority, which is creating a power empire in the southeast.

The case on which the momentous issue hangs originated when receivers of the Hoosac mills of New Bedford, Mass., went into federal court fighting the processing taxes.

With the high court reconvening October 7 it is expected that the department of justice will urge the case be advanced for argument.

If this is done, the high court may issue a final decision before Congress reconvenes January 3.

The court also has before it an appeal involving constitutionality of the Blackman cotton control act, which plays a vital role in the AAA cotton program.

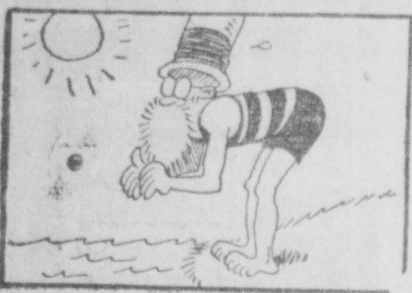

The court ruled two to one in its decision in the Hoosac mills case. Two judges held that Congress violated the constitution in levying a billion dollars of processing taxes because the real purpose was to control production, which is the business of the states.

Congress Hilarious at Order of Adjournment

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—As the session of Congress faded away last night the House made merry.

With Rep. William Connery of Massachusetts an ex-actor, as leader of the navy band, members and galleries joined in a song fest before the gavel for adjournment was banged by Speaker Byrns.

Democrats threw their arms around Republicans. The strife and stress of the nearly nine months grind was forgotten. Everybody seemed to be glad it was over.

Rep. Louis Habaut of Michigan scored a hit with his songs while handsome Rep. Matt Merritt of New York brought thunderous applause by singing "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

While Senator Huey Long was berating him in the Senate, Rep. James Buchanan of Texas grabbed the trap drum and played it like a seasoned musician, Rep. Sol Bloom of New York relieved him.

The galleries rose and cheered as the band played "Dixie" and "Yankee Doodle."

Rep. Florence Kahn of California was introduced by Connery as "one of the greatest ladies in the history of Congress" while Rep. Caroline O'Day of New York donned a bandman's cap and swung the baton for "Tammany."

A quartet comprised of Reps. Knutson, Sauthoff, Gerhmann and Boileau sang a Dutch song.

Michigan, Iowa and other state delegations sang their state songs with gusto. Forgetting jobhunters and elections, their voices swelled with pride as they realized that they soon were going back home.

REYNOLDS IS JAILED FOR DRUNK DRIVING

Lee Reynolds, W. Corwin-st., was fined $100 and costs and his driving rights suspended for six months by Mayor Cady Tuesday morning for driving an auto while intoxicated. Reynolds was committed to the county jail.

Reynolds and three companions were arrested by Officers Green and Shasteen Monday night at the end of W. Mound-st near the N. & W. railroad after a Mound-st resident reported seeing four intoxicated men in a car. The three booked on intoxication charges were given lectures by Mayor Cady and released.

NEW HIGH FOR FAIR IS SEEN

35,000 Attend Opening Day; Junior Fair Draws Many Many Hundreds.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27.—Hopeful that the weatherman leaves his threat of rain at home, state fair officials today prepared for another large crowd of visitors after witnessing 35,000 persons jam their way through the fairgrounds during the opening day of the eighty-fifth annual state fair here.

A number of attractions awaited visitors today which began at 9 a. m. with the judging of Belgian horses and sheep.

Two added features—a horse pulling contest for lightweight pairs and a sheep shearing contest—attracted large early-morning throngs to the Coliseum.

The inaugural of the state's march of agricultural progress won the hearty approval of swarms of women and children who attended the opening of the fair free of charge.

The attendance mark was swelled by the appearance of approximately 25,000 pupils of high and rural schools throughout the state who were entered in the seventh annual junior fair in which $11,500 in premiums will be awarded.

EYMON KNOWN

Alkire of Williamsport, O., where he was teaching school. Mr. Alkire was a state champion trapshooter when Mr. Eymon knew him.

Mr. Eymon had a wide clientele among sportsmen who wished repairs made on their favorite guns. Several years ago he tightened and conditioned a shotgun valued at $340. He was especially expert in installing ivory sights or inlay pieces. The work required expert precision and care.

Mr. Eymon came to Marion shortly after he completed his law training at the University of Michigan in 1903.

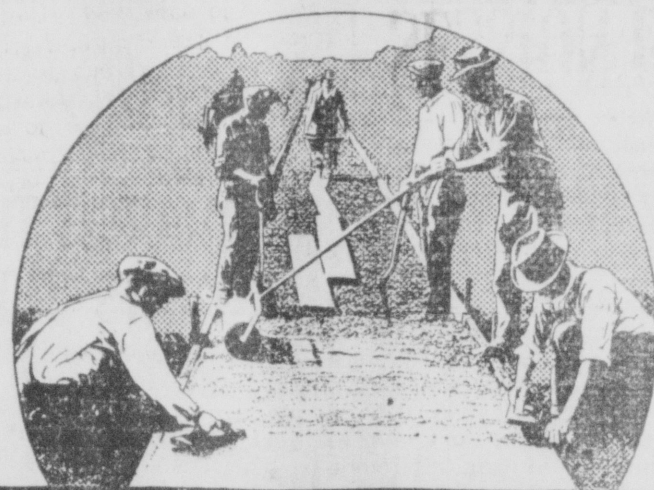

For approximately 25 years Mr. Eymon was the Marion counsel for the Pennsylvania railroad and for the same period of time he was representative for the Marionco Humane society which he served as president for a number of years.

Taught in County

It was not until eight years after he finished his common school education, during which he taught in Pickaway-co., that he entered the university and began the study of law.

Mr. Eymon was a member of the First Presbyterian church, a director of the Marion Gun club, a member of Marion Lodge No. 70, F. and A. M., Marion Chapter No. 62, R. A. M., Marion Council No. 22, R. and S. M., Marion Commandery No. 36, Knights Templar, and Kosciuszko Lodge No. 58, I. O. O. F.

Mr. Eymon was born Dec. 19, 1872 near Circleville in Pickaway-co. to the late Samuel and Catherine Hepburn Eymon. He was married at Williamsport, O., on Aug. 1, 1896 to Miss Nina Alice Slyh. He was a brother of Mrs. G. G. Adkins, Circleville.

Get Lasting Benefit from Relief Labor!

BUILD NEEDED SIDEWALKS AND OTHER PERMANENT IMPROVEMENTS

WORK relief projects must be found. The best ones are those which result in permanent community benefits.

Many blocks of new sidewalks are urgently needed—will have to be built soon anyway to extend present walks or replace old, wornout, dangerous walks.

Why not build these needed walks with relief labor! Hundreds of other cities have found this type of project ideal.

Curb and gutter construction, drainage structures, park improvements, swimming pools, salvaging old streets—these are only a few among hundreds of beneficial concrete improvements that create maximum work.

Write or wire for literature and timely facts on specific types of projects using concrete.

they settle the long drawn-out battle.

Clear issues which face the second session are:

1. Frazier-Lemke $3,000,000, 000 farm refinancing inflation bill. Support of only 10 members is needed to force the action in the House. Senate backers already are planning their fight.

2. The NRA. Congressional leaders have agreed to make a study of an NRA substitute as asked by President Roosevelt. House judiciary committee agreed to study government contracts bill imposing NRA standards.

3. Silver. Repeal of the nationalization act will be pending. Senate "silver bloc" plans fight for free silver market.

4. Farm relief. The compromise settlement on cotton loans did not pacify southern Senators. Coalition with western Senators to fight for guaranteed price for major farm products expected.

5. Neutrality Delayed. One of the biggest issues was postponed until next session by a compromise, under which a mandatory arms embargo to warring nations is effective until next Feb. 29. Backers of permanent arms embargo served notice of a battle in January.

6. Economy. With a government deficit of billions certain, a Democratic group, aided by Republicans, has served notice that governmental economy will be one of the big questions of the next session.

Among the Roosevelt measures left on the calendars of Senate and House were ship subsidy, transportation coordination and food and drug legislation.

The Bankhead bill for a $1,000,000,000 government corporation to buy farms for share-cropper and tenants passed the Senate and will be pending in the House.

The course of the next session may be somewhat determined by the Supreme court.

to the subdivisions is about $1 as compared to $4 spent by the government. All property on which improvements are made must be owned by the subdivisions. We are especially glad to consider projects for the development of centralized school grounds as recreational centers."

The projects are listed under two classifications. Mr. Graham explained. The first classification includes township roads that can be reconditioned at a cost of about $2,000 per mile or less. He asked the trustees to list roads needing reconstruction giving the name of the road, the points of improvement and type needed, amount of money available for material costs, and the equipment available for use on road work. The second type of projects includes those involving an expenditure of more than $25,000. Projects now listed will furnish employment about Nov. 1.

May Relist Projects

One trustee inquired if ditch improvements would be considered under WPA. Mr. Graham informed him they would not as the property involved in ditch work is privately owned. He explained unfinished FERA projects may be relisted under WPA.

A few projects that may be listed under WPA were outlined by township officials. Pickaway-twp school board plans to regrade the yard in the rear of the school to eliminate a pool of water forming after heavy rains. Deer Creek-twp trustees are considering repainting the township hall.

The county commissioners plan to consider the installation of a sewage disposal system at the children's home.

Two projects under consideration by the city are the sidewalk rebuilding program and the removal of the car tracks from Court-st.

HAY FEVER AND ASTHMA SYMPTOMS

From Rev. J. W. Bell, Winchester, Va., come these reports of relief from hay fever and bronchial asthma for five successive years. In 1930 he wrote: "I suffered severely from both hay fever and asthma in 1928."

"I passed through the 1929 hay fever season without any suffering or discomfort. I attribute this entirely to Dr. Fugate's Prescription."

And in Nov., 1933, after a three year interval, Rev. Bell wrote: "I had no hay fever or asthma this year, though I lived at the same place."

If you suffer from either hay fever or bronchial asthma symptoms try the prescription which has brought relief to thousands of sufferers.

HUEY LONG HAMPERS PRESIDENT'S SECURITY PROGRAM

SPEAKS UNTIL SESSION ENDS

Filibuster Prevents Appropriation For Guffey Bill, Social Security Act.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—A sulky, ill-tempered Congress went home today, tired to the point of nausea, and whipped to a standstill by the unfathomable Huey Long.

Adjournment came at midnight, under a resolution adopted much earlier in the day. It halted a five and a half hour filibuster conducted successfully by the Kingfish.

The only purpose of the night session of the congress was passage of the third deficiency bill, carrying appropriations for the social security legislation and other important measures—and then Huey talked the bill to death.

Taunted By Solons
Long had no friends in his fight, and throughout he was accused of grandstanding, willfulness and a lack of sportsmanship. He looked his accusers in the face, came back with sharp, seriously delivered retorts, and kept on. He was still on his feet when the Senate clock hands crept to the hour of midnight, and Vice President Capper whacked his gavel on the gavel before him for adjournment.

As a result of it all, the administration must scratch around and find a sum in the neighborhood of a hundred million dollars which the deficiency bill would have appropriated. Senate leaders said President Roosevelt can find the money.

It all arose after southern senators attacked a rider to the bill on Saturday providing a mandatory 12 cents a pound cotton loan and a wheat loan of 90 cents a bushel.

The House refused to pass the bill in this form, and an impasse resulted which forced a postponement of the scheduled Saturday midnight adjournment. A series of conferences on Monday brought an announcement that the administration would raise the announced ante of nine cents a pound loans on cotton to 10 cents. This was accepted by some southern Senators, but reluctantly accepted by others. The House was then adjourned.

Called At 5 O'clock
With this situation obtaining, the Senate after a recess of some hours on Monday, reconvened at 5 p. m. to recall the tied-up deficiency bill from the House, reconsidered the vote which placed the cotton and wheat rider in it, and pass it as drafted and without the rider.

There was some desultory debate, and then the Senate Democratic leader, Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, moved that the rider vote be reconsidered and the bill passed without it. At this point, Long took the floor. It was then about 6:30 p. m.

A fast runner and a powerful swimmer, the water buck, nevertheless, is often in danger for his flesh is desired by many beasts of prey. He makes straight for the nearest river when hunted but this often proves an unwise move, for he may run into a crocodile who is always ready to welcome him. They run in bands of 15 or 20 and choose rough country for their habitat, having the ability to bound up the steepest cliffs with incredible speed.

PATROL CAPTURES CAMP FUGITIVES

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27.—Arrest of two fugitives from the Sandusky honor camp today near Bridgeport, O., was announced here by the Ohio highway patrol. The pair, Cleus Mitchell, 21, and Duke Nunye, 25, escaped from the honor camp on Aug. 18, and, according to the patrol, stole a car belonging to Ralph J. Ransdell, Bloomingville, O., and proceeded to Carroll, Ill.

Three youths answering the description of the fugitive Ohioans criminally assaulted a woman and stole her husband's automobile. Campi police notified the patrol.

At noon yesterday, two men ordered gasoline at a Pomeroy, O., filling station and drove away without paying for it. The patrol said they closely resembled the fugitives.

The car stolen in Illinois was found abandoned in Marietta late yesterday, and a few hours later the theft of a small coupe from Sistersville, W. Va., was reported to police. Again police suspected Mitchell and Nunye.

Their arrest near Bridgeport, patrol headquarters said, was followed by positive identification through fingerprints and recovery of the car stolen in Sistersville, together with the Illinois license plates from the car stolen in Carmi.

The patrol said they may be returned to Illinois for trial on a statutory charge if identified by the Carmi woman as her assailant.

SEN. CONNALLY'S WIFE SUCCUMBS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The death of the wife of Senator Tom Connally (D) of Martin, Texas, saddened the closing hours of the first session of the 74th congress. Tired and weary from packing for their belated vacation in Harlin, Mrs. Louise Clarkson Connally, 54, went to the Senate office building to see her husband. She suffered a heart attack and was carried into his office, the capitol's physician was called but she died 10 minutes later in her husband's arms with a smile on her face.

The senator will start back tonight with the body. The blow was a great shock to him. Although wearied by the long session he was in the midst of the fight that was waged until adjournment came at midnight the unsuccessful fight to have funds appropriated for an outright 12-cents-a-pound loan on this year's cotton harvest.

A son, Ben, a Houston (Tex.) lawyer, also survives.

Mrs. Connally was popular in the congressional set and was an accomplished vocalist.

CONSOLIDATE SMALL STATE SCHOOLS, URGE

Sherrill Report Cites Great Savings to Districts; Advises Insurance.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27.—The elimination of fire insurance on public school buildings and the creation of a state system of self-insurance were urged today in a report by the Sherrill Committee to the governor.

By setting up a reserve fund for self-insurance through deducting small amounts from school funds redistributed to the counties, the Legislature could save $418,600 per year. For a four year period, fire insurance on buildings throughout the state amounting to $1,153,114 and actual fire loss for the period was only $115,965.

Similar self-insurance for school buses was recommended with possible savings of $288,000 per year. The report also urged the State Department of Education to consolidate one-room rural school buildings and small high schools of less than 125 pupils and to eliminate rural and village school districts. This would aid, the report said, "the development of a coordinated state wide program of rational education and remove rural influences."

The survey estimates $2,295,000 could be saved annually by this consolidation program. There are 1500 one-room rural buildings, 150 small high schools which would fall under this proposal. The elimination of rural school board salaries by the consolidation, would save $410,000, the committee asserts, and revision of school bus routes would net $460,000 savings.

The consolidation program was included in the Foundation Bill, House Bill 446, but as the measure was passed it did not include these economies.

Questions and Answers

Will you please tell me what saleratus is? I have an old recipe book which uses the term and does not describe the nature of the product.

Saleratus is a name which was used for baking soda years ago. Use your favorite brand of baking soda wherever the old recipes call for saleratus.

What are grilled almonds? Are they sweet meat or just salted nuts?

Grilled almonds, according to an old recipe, are crisp, sweetened nuts. Prepare them like this: Blanch and dry thoroughly 1 cup of almonds. Boil 1 cup of sugar with 4 tablespoons of water until the syrup spins a thread. Then put the almonds in the syrup and cook them in the syrup, stirring them until the nuts turn a light brown. Remove from the stove as soon as the sugar changes color, and stir until the syrup has turned back to sugar and clings to the nuts in various shapes. Served with salted almonds, the grilled almonds are quite a delicacy.

Will you tell me whether you approve of or disagree with the school of thought opposed to eating starches and proteins at the same meal?

A noted doctor gives this opinion: "There is no scientific foundation for the view that we cannot satisfactorily handle starches and proteins in the digestive tract. It is true that the conditions in the stomach which favor protein digestion are unfavorable to starch digestion, but we do not rely entirely on the stomach for food digestion. In the small intestine where most of the digestion takes place, both starches and proteins are satisfactorily handled at the same time."

Please print a recipe for muffins made with honey.

Honey muffins may be called "Butterfly Muffins" to add a fancy name to a delicious breakfast.

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout Troop No. 4 took a breakfast hike on Friday, Aug. 23 to the Valentine grove back of the hospital. After cooking in various camp styles, breakfast was an enjoyable occasion. Business and games followed. The Nature Trail homeward was marked by interesting experiences with birds, trees, animals and flowers. Our next meeting, at which we hope to round out some of our handicraft, will be held at 2 p. m. next Friday in the basement of the Presbyterian church.

BETTY YOUNG, Assistant Scribe

Girl Scout Troop No. 5 met Saturday afternoon in the High School yard.

The troop went on a hike to a woods. We built a fire and roasted weiners and marshmallows.

The girls of the troop who had been to the scout camp told of their experiences.

We played games and sang songs and closed with the radio handicraft while singing taps.

CLEAN HEAT For Your Home

Your curtains that remain fresh so long in summer—do they quickly become dull in winter? Why this difference? Furnace dirt is the answer—smoke, soot, dust and ashes settling on curtains, rugs and upholstery. Gas heat is clean, and by its use, as much as 80 per cent of your cleaning bill on furnishings can be eliminated.

Investigate GAS Heat For Your Home Now

Before having any need for your furnace, before you buy any fuel, investigate automatic gas heat. It is clean, needs no attention, and maintains constant temperatures. All incidental expenses considered, it costs less than old-fashioned solid fuels. Ask us about installing gas-fired equipment in your furnace at once, and paying for it in small installments like rent.

The JANITROL gas burner operates automatically. You don't even need a match to start it in the fall, and you can forget it until time to turn it off in the spring. There is a correct size and type to fit your furnace or boiler. It can be easily and quickly installed.

THE customary injunction to all persons in all circumstances is to "read a paper before you sign it." In the case of petitions now going the rounds preliminary to the elections, this advice should be amplified. Not only should you read a petition before signing it, but you should think about the matter also. This is particularly true of proposals for amendment to the state constitution. Many unimportant proposals to change the basic law will get on the ballot this fall, probably, just because a great number of good-natured, obliging persons have signed petitions they did not read and would not have approved if they had troubled to read them.

One such proposal is to amend the constitution of Ohio to prohibit any tax levy on real property. The folly of this plan was remarked in these columns Sunday. Another wild-eyed scheme is to prohibit sales taxes—in other words to repeal the existing sales tax and make any other impossible. Still another proposal is to exempt food and clothing from the sales tax, which is tantamount to abandoning the tax.

In general, it is a sound rule to oppose any constitutional amendment which hampers the Legislature in the performance of its rightful duties. To deny the General Assembly the right to levy taxes on sales of food and clothing is to destroy their work of last year and force them to new expedients to pay for the things the people demand should be done. To force abandonment of the taxes on real estate is to pile up new and burdensome taxes on everyone, and in effect to give windfall benefits to owners of real property who bought at prices which were lower because of customary taxes.

One of the reasons why government is not on a higher plane in Ohio is precisely the tendency of the people to hamper the Legislature by unwise constitutional amendments. The worst possible way to destroy the work of the Legislature is to deprive it of the most convenient and productive sources of revenue. To do so compels the legislators to rush through hasty, badly designed revenue measures, taxing blindly to get the money for essential functions of government. It is best to give every political petition very careful study before signing it or circulating it for another person. If this were done extensively, the ballot would not be cluttered with inane and insane projects that have no claim to serious public consideration.

—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL

TODAY the Sunday school contends with competition undreamed of in olden times. Indifference to church and religion, the so-called waning power of parental authority, the automobile and Sunday trip, popularization of the vacation, the hot weather exodus from city and town, and the gradual breakdown of old traditions of Sunday observance.

Inroads upon attendance from these causes are most marked during the period of hot weather, the best evidence of which is the high tide of attendance which annually begins to flow about this time of year, not to recede again until the return of summer. Roll calls in the Sunday schools on these October Sundays show that the period of desultory attendance is at an end. Teachers and students are pouring back into the Sunday school classes eager for the opportunity to teach and learn.

These seasonal fluctuations in attendance and interest cause ministerial and lay workers to inquire whether the fault all lies with factors outside the Sunday schools. Some are asking if the schools are doing all within their power to counteract these destructive elements.

Is the Sunday school keeping pace with human progress? Is it working with modern equipment? Has it developed as rapidly and intelligently as the public schools? These are some of the questions being answered, and which must be answered before summer attendance again approximates that of the period from late fall to early spring.

These men and women upon whom rests the responsibility of imparting to Americans both young and old a knowledge of religious teachings and literature will solve this modern problem, though the task before them may not be less formidable than that approached by those who laid the foundation stones for this vast system of Sunday schools.

Suckers can't appreciate help. If they didn't hate and jeer the meddler who tries to save them, they wouldn't be suckers.

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THIS SUMMER, while in England, I took a somewhat out-of-the-way journey to Berkeley in Gloucestershire. It lies between Bristol and Gloucester, both of them interesting cities, but both some what off the beaten track of tourists. Berkeley is still more off the beaten track, a sleepy little village in the heart of the beautiful Cotswold country of western England.

It was in Berkeley that Edward Jenner did his first vaccination against smallpox. The little thatched summer house, the scene of the event, is still standing in a corner of the vicarage garden. Jenner's brother was the vicar of St. Martin's church, and the old churchyard and church itself are next door to the little thatched house.

Strangely enough, no plaque or sign marks the spot to explain to the casual visitor what occurred here. There is no statue or monument to Jenner in the main street of the little town. Only an occasional interested medical man like myself, who has the trouble to scramble through the bushes and over the fence of the churchyard to catch a glimpse of that historic structure. In the church Jenner's grave is found with a simple stone in the wall bears only his name and his dates:

"Edward Jenner, 1749-1823"

I like that. No one should have to be told what name is associated with one of the very greatest triumphs of mankind—more important than all the victories of all the wars.

CHAPTER 31

COULD IT be that the face Janet had seen at the Tower window was that of this mysterious person whom Rajah obeyed? Certainly, the dog did not take orders from Nita or Miss Boisevain. He ignored them. Someone else in the house...

"You had better go to bed, child," Miss Boisevain said softly. "Can't I set up and read with you? You may need me."

"Nita will stay. Goodnight," Janet looked indignantly at Nita. The servant nodded her head, agreeing with her mistress, and the girl made ready to leave the room.

Nita preceded her as usual with a candle, escorting her up the stairs. At the top she reached the landing, and vanished down the dark hallway.

Janet entered her little room, locked the door carefully and sat on the edge of her bed.

Someone else in the house, she couldn't find the thought from her mind.

Suddenly, without warning, she walked to the door and tried it. It was firmly locked, and the key turned. No one could possibly get in that door tonight. Yet, last night and the night before, her room had been entered. True, it had been a long time since she had been in her room, but last night she had been in her room, and she had found the door open.

Was there another entrance to the room? With her candle in her hand, she explored the closets, which which opened off the room on the north wall. No door here from the outside. She tried the left-hand closet to make sure. No door here, but on the paneled wall she noticed a few finger marks. She went carefully over the wall of the closet, but found the finger prints only at one spot—near the moulding of the panel. The rest of the paper was faded, but clean.

Quickly re-entering the bedroom, she looked over the walls there. Not a sign of a finger mark. Another trip to the closet, and she placed her own fingers on the marks and pressed against the moulding. The small panel slid back, and she was looking into the darkness.

Trembling a little, she slipped off her shoes and went forward slowly. She was in another bare room, a room she had investigated from the hall. The room adjoining hers!

On the walls of the room, at exactly the height of the finger marks in her closet, she found other marks. "Do not take a light..." she repeated.

She scratched her nails against the wood of the door panel softly. A knock might be heard. Miss Boisevain had been there. Again, but she received no answer.

Another sound froze her rigidly in her tracks, her hand poised in mid-air... the noise of a car racing near the house!

Without hesitation, Janet hastily fled from the room, stumbled down the hall, found the stairs and in a moment was on the second floor, breathing breathlessly. She slid through the panel to her room, and found blinking at the feeble glow of the candle in the middle of the floor. The engine noise had stopped now.

Still blinded by the light, she sat, exhausted, on the floor.

Four people... five, perhaps six in this house! Miss Boisevain, Nita, the one in the tower, the driver of the car and Blair Rodman. Six!

Two of them she had never seen. Dragging her coat over in front of the closed door, she sat, hunched dependently on the edge. The closet door opened into the room, so if anyone tried to enter the room this night, she would have to be awakened first!

Why had she run away from the tower door?

Fear, she decided, of being caught... not by Nita or Miss Boisevain, but by this mysterious person... the one Rajah obeyed. Hardly had she thought of the dog than she heard him leaping, heavy and lithe, up the stairs.

Then silence. He probably had lain down at her door to watch her for the night!

"Clever to try to get out of the room again, with Rajah there... she would have to wait for morning before she searched for Blair Rodman."

Warily, she undressed and soon was under the coarse blanket. But she could not sleep. The mad playing had started again on the living room piano.

It could not be Miss Boisevain... she had been weak and ill when Janet left her... it was someone else.

The girl thought the music even more terrible tonight than it had been the previous evening. She could not lie still, so she got up and walked the bare floor, her hands over her ears to shut out the maddening tune.

If the music had affected Miss Boisevain so cruelly the night before, what would it do to her tonight, when she was so sick, so feeble?

When I was a beggarly boy,

I had fire enough in my brain,
And builded, with roofs of gold,
My beautiful castles in Spain!

Since then I have toiled day and night,
I have money and power good store,
But I'd give all my lamps of silver bright
For that one that is mine no more.

Take, Fort une, whatever you choose;
You gave, and may snatch again;
I have nothing 'twould pain me to lose,
For I own no more castles in Spain!

Delegation of Solons

Pressured President to Accept Neutrality Act

WASHINGTON — An almost knock-down-and-drag-out verbal battle took place between Roosevelt and a delegation of Congressmen before the President finally waived his major objections to the Neutrality Act.

The delegation was non-partisan—six Democrats, two Republicans and one Farmer-laborite. It called to demand that the President cooperate in obtaining passage of the Pittman Neutrality Act, aimed at keeping the United States out of Europe's fast-brewing catastrophe.

Although already approved by the Senate, it was blocked in the House by Sam McReynolds of Tennessee, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, who was working with Secretary of State Hull, also from Tennessee.

Upon receiving the delegation, Roosevelt explained at some length that the power to control foreign policy belonged to the Chief Executive, that the question of neutrality came under this heading, and that he wanted to protect these powers not merely for himself, but for his successors.

Responsible

"If we fail to pass this legislation, Mr. President, and if the United States drifts into an international jam before the next session as it well may do—then the people of this country will know that the responsibility rests on the shoulders of one man."

"And," concluded Sisson, "it will cause the defeat of the Democratic Party."

NOTE—Next day Roosevelt sent word to Capitol Hill that he agreed to the Pittman Neutrality Act with the very reservation that it extend only February 29, 1936. By that date there probably will be war in Europe.

Lionized

Senator Borah has found one spot in Washington where he can be alone.

Every morning, rain or shine, he drives to the Zoo, gets out of his car, and wanders about looking at the animals. On week days he allows himself a half hour of this solitude; on Sundays an hour or two.

Here is a place, he explains, where no telephones ring and no newspapermen ask for interviews. He is especially fond of the path that leads down through the woods between the zebra run and the bear cages.

The animals, he says, are good company, without being talkative. Of them all, Borah often called the "lion-maned Idahoan"—confesses that he best likes the lions.

Youth Administrator

Aubrey Williams, director of the National Youth Administration, has been presented with two colleges and an endowed school. And he doesn't know what to do with them.

The educators in charge said: "Here are our facilities; you take them over and run the show."

Thirty years ago Williams would have lost no time making use of a college or two. He went to work on a laundry wagon at the age of seven, had but one year of formal schooling before he was twenty.

Then he entered Maryville College in Tennessee to study for the ministry. He painted signs, managed a summer Chautauqua, and boosted himself into the University of Cincinnati.

The urge to enter the ministry with him through military service in the War, until he tried it once as a lay preacher in a small Kentucky town on the Ohio River. Then he decided the language he had learned in the trenches was not suited to the pulpit, and he gave it up.

When Williams picks up the telephone in his NYA office he talks first in the soft tones of a man who has pleaded earnestly for the spiritual welfare of textile workers and

A MOST USEFUL DOUBLE

THERE IS A most useful variety of the informative double, termed a "subsequent double," because its user opens the auction, then doubles an adverse call, demands that partner support the original call, make his best suit bid, shift to no trumps on stous to the adverse suit or allow the double to stand if very powerful in opponent's suit. Here is a case of the sort.

♠ 5 3
♥ 8 2
♦ Q J 7 6
♣ Q 10 8 5 2

♠ A K Q
♥ 6 2
♦ Q 4 7
♣ 7 4 3

♠ J 10 9
♥ 7 4
♦ J 10 5 8
♣ K 8
♠ A 8
♥ A K 9 6 4
♦ A 10 5 3
♣ K J 9

Bidding went: South, 1-Heart; West, 1-Spade; South, doubled, rather than rebid a five-card suit and at once he called upon to ruff spades. The subsequent double showed a holding strength chiefly consisted of, side strength, capable of strongly supporting a shift of call by partner. North replied with 3-Clubs, to show somewhat greater strength than the three tricks expected when partner makes an informative double, thereupon South bid 5-Clubs, ending the auction.

The opening lead was the J of spades. It held the trick. West playing the 6, thinking that forcing the strong hand (dummy in this case) to ruff from only three trumps might prove good strategy. East led the 10 of spades, forcing dummy to ruff.

The K of clubs was captured with East's Ace and that partner attempted to put dummy in by leading his last trump. Declarer could not stand for his Q and led the 10 of clubs, picking up the last outstanding trump.

Declarer's ability to go game depended upon finding a fairly even distribution of diamonds, with the K of hearts, the Q of diamonds was led by North. East's K covered and the Ace won. Trailing, but not surely, diamonds would be divided 3-2 between defenders, insuring game. It always is well to consider the possibility of one means of offense failing, and having another possibility in reserve. If diamonds were half four in East's hand it was probably that hearts were held 3-3 and could be held by East. North's 10 of diamonds, East's K covered, South's 10 won the trick. West's 4 fell, showing that game was assured. North's J picked up the last opposing diamond, leaving declarer with a single good diamond and a good trump with which to win the twelfth and thirteenth tricks, just giving his side its 5-0 contract. South could not have done game at hearts.

Congress Hilarious at Order of Adjournment

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 - As the session of Congress faded away last night the House made merry.
With Rep. William Connery of Massachusetts an ex-actor, as leader of the navy band, members and galleries joined in a song fest before the gavel for adjournment was rung by Speaker Byrnes.
Democrats threw their arms around Republicans. The strife and stress of the nearly nine months grind was forgotten. Everybody seemed to be glad it was over.
Rep. Louis Habant of Michigan scored a hit with his songs while handsome Rep. Matt Merritt of New York brought thunderous applause by singing "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

While Senator Huey Long was berating him in the Senate, Rep. James Buchanan of Texas grabbed the trap drum and played it like a seasoned musician. Rep. Sol Bloom of New York relieved him.

The galleries rose and cheered as the band played "Dixie" and "Yankee Doodle." Rep. Florence Kahn of California was introduced by Connery as "one of the greatest ladies in the history of Congress" while Rep. Caroline O'Day of New York donned a bandman's cap and swung the baton for "Tammany."

A quartet comprised of Reps. Knutson, Sauthoff, Gerhmann and Boileau sang a Dutch song.

Michigan, Iowa and other state delegations sang their state songs with gusto. Forgetting jobhunters and elections, their voices swelled with pride as they realized that they soon were going back home.

Joe Willis of R. 5 was discharged from Berger hospital Tuesday. He recently underwent an operation.

Mrs. Tillie Scheiner, 63, of Chillicothe, who was treated in Berger hospital for severe face lacerations suffered in a motor wreck Monday, was to be returned home Tuesday.

Mourns Sweetheart

Roger Thibadeau, above, mourns the loss of his sweetheart, 17-year-old Florence Greiner, who was slain in Biddeford, Me. The girl's nude body was found buried beneath rubbish in a dump. The head was bashed in. Alexander Cloutier, 25-year-old saw mill employee, who was charged with the slaying, entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned.

SESSION ENDS

The session which face the second session are:

1. Frazier-Lemke $2,000,000-000 farm refinancing inflation bill. Support of only 10 members is needed to force the action in the House. Senate backers already are planning their fight.
2. The NRA. Congressional leaders have agreed to make a study of an NRA substitute as asked by President Roosevelt. House judiciary committee agreed to study government contracts bill imposing NRA standards.
3. Silver. Repeal of the nationalization act will be pending. Senate "silver bloc" plans fight for free silver market.
4. Farm relief. The compromise settlement on cotton loans did not pacify southern Senators. Coalition with western Senators to fight for guaranteed price for major farm products expected.
5. Neutrality. Delayed.
6. Neutrality. One of the biggest issues was postponed until next session by a compromise, under which a mandatory arms embargo to warring nations is effective until next Feb. 29. B. C. of permanent arms embargo served notice of a battle in January.
7. Economy. With a government deficit of billions certain, a Democratic group, aided by Republicans, has served notice that governmental economy will be one of the big questions of the next session.

Among the Roosevelt measures left on the calendars of Senate and House were ship subsidy, transportation coordination and food and drug legislation.

The Bankhead bill for a $1,000,000,000 government corporation to buy farms for share-cropper and tenant to pass the Senate and will be pending in the House.

The course of the next session may be somewhat determined by the Supreme court.

documents containing a mass of new evidence in an effort to prove Ethiopia is unfit for membership in the league and has been guilty of acts of aggression during the past 40 years.

The projects are listed under two classifications, Mr. Graham explained. The first classification includes township roads that can be reconstructed at a cost of about $2,000 per mile or less. He asked the trustees to list roads needing reconstruction giving the name of the road, the points of improvement and type needed, amount of money available for material costs, and the equipment available for use on road work.

The second type of projects includes those involving an expenditure of more than $25,000. Projects now listed will furnish employment about Nov. 1.

May Relist Projects
One trustee inquired if ditch improvements would be considered under WPA. Mr. Graham informed him they would not as the property involved in ditch work is privately owned. He explained unfinished FERA projects may be relisted under WPA.

A few projects that may be listed under WPA were outlined by township officials. Pickaway-twp school board plans to regrade the yard in the rear of the school to eliminate a pool of water forming after heavy rains. Deer Creek-twp trustees are considering repainting the township hall.

The county commissioners plan to consider the installation of a sewage disposal system at the children's home.

Two projects under consideration by the city are the sidewalk rebuilding program and the removal of the car tracks from Court-st.

$15,000 FATAL CLIMB
SANTA FE, N. M. - The city of Roswell, N. M. and the Southwestern Public Service Co. face a $15,000 damage suit because a 12-year-old boy wanted to investigate a bird's nest atop a pole. The boy, Carl Spiva, was killed when he came in contact with high-tension wires which attorneys for his family claim, were improperly insulated.

Virginia Minister Reports Relief from HAY FEVER AND ASTHMA SYMPTOMS

From Rev. J. W. Bell, Winchester, Va. come these reports of relief from hay fever and bronchial asthma for five successive years. In 1930 he wrote: "I suffered severely from both hay fever and asthma in 1928."

"I passed through the 1929 hay fever season without any suffering or discomfort. I attribute this entirely to Dr. Fugate's Prescription."

And in Nov., 1933, after a three year interval, Rev. Bell wrote: "I had no hay fever or asthma this year, though I lived at the same place."

If you suffer from either hay fever or bronchial asthma symptoms try the prescription which has brought relief to thousands of sufferers.
